What Beautiful People

In the lonely dreary land of Montana lies Bannack. A ghost town established in the 1800s during the gold rush at the time, it has been converted into a tourist town full not only history but some wicked awesome shots. Each year many people volunteer their time to be actors during the reenactments, and we had the opportunity to have them come again, on their own time, to let us take pictures. For a few hours, we had a blast with these models, taking pictures, giving direction and just having soo much fun. I learned so much about portrait photography, and here are some of my favorites.

Up Close & Personal

Shooting Macro was soo much fun! I really enjoyed taking regular objects, and by looking at them in a whole new way via zooming in and all that fun stuff. By using new filters and added light, these sweet photos came to life. I had never done macro before, and trying out this new style was really fun. Some of these examples are just easy objects that were found in the room as we went around practicing the process. It takes some time, but it is soo worth it.

Creative

When it comes to creativity, photography lets one express in a way that can't be done anywhere else. Throughout the learning process, as I have been figuring out how to do good photography, new and different methods have been introduced. Motion, Abstract, and Fine Art are just a few of the many different ways you can take a picture. I really like how these turned out. Some of which are better than others, but that is all part of the learning process.

Motion was one of the first methods of photography I learned, and when I first took some example images, they didn't turn out that great. However, the first example, that being blurred lines from passing cars, although wasn't the best, taught me the principles I needed to do really good photography. I'm am grateful for the things I have learned and hope to continue growing my skills!

About Me

My name is Jared Rigby and I have been a photographer for about 3 months! This is my first dive into photography, and I have absolutly loved it!

I was born in raised in Rexburg Idaho, and living here so close to the nountains and trees is honetsly jsut magical. Even though some of my best pictrues in this book came from my portaits, Landscape is my favorite. I adore being able to take pictures of nature, for it is a miracle that it even exists; similarly like my skills of photography.

I have learned so much throughout my journey, but the ride isnt over yet! Buckle up, for things are jsut getting started!
